

SYSTEM SERVICES ENHANCEMENT FOR DISPLAYING CUSTOMIZED VIEWS

ABSTRACT

A method for presenting system services can include the step of establishing a multitude of system service profiles. A request for the presentation of system services can be detected. One of the system service profiles associated with the request can be determined. For example, the system service profile can be determined based at least in part upon user identity. The system service profile can also be determined based at least in part upon server identity. At least one system service can be listed in accordance with the determined system service profile.